

Program Overview

Application changes for 2008 Hot Topics, Tips, & Hints

Have you ever wondered why so much information is required on the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) application, or how much detail to provide? Do portions of the application confuse or stump you?

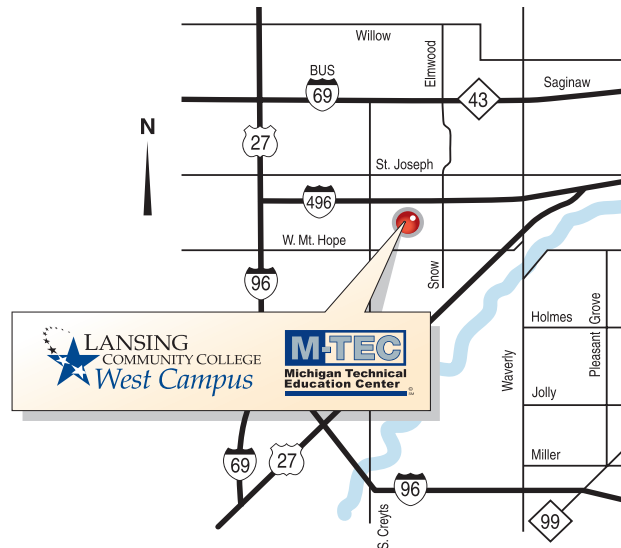

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) Water Bureau presents its first NPDES application workshop. This workshop is intended for permittees, and their designated representatives, with applications due on or before April 4, 2008. Others may attend on a space-available basis. The half-day workshop will provide you with a review of application changes, guidance on completing the appropriate sections of the application, and a chance to get personal assistance in completing your application.

This is your opportunity to talk to program experts and learn how to fill out the application efficiently, with less effort, and completely the first time.

DEQ Water Bureau staff will be available to discuss permit application, industrial pretreatment, biosolids, electronic reporting, water intake structures, toxicity testing, analytical testing, storm water, and Water Quality Standards.
